

RAJ PATEL – STUFFED AND STARVED: THE VALUE OF FOOD IN THE WORLD TODAY

November 15, 7 pm | Lecture

Part of the UConn Democracy Dialogue Series

Food policy expert, journalist, activist, and author Raj Patel traces the causes of this crisis from farm to fork, revealing a greatly flawed food system dominated by a few, powerful, major corporations.

Sponsored by: Human Rights Initiative, Office of Community Outreach, Student Activities, Women's Center, Rainbow Center, Dining Services, Asian American Studies Institute, UConn Libraries, The Thomas J. Dodd Research Center, American Studies Program, Humanities Institute, Honors Program, Leadership Legacy, Human Rights Institute, Month of Kindness, Ecohouse Learning Community, UConn P.I.R.G., India Studies, Public Health Learning Community, and Jorgensen Center for the Performing Arts

Free to UConn Fac/Staff & Students | Open to the public with a $5 donation to the Covenant Soup Kitchen

jorgensen
Center for the Performing Arts

jorgensen.uconn.edu
860-486-4226

Located on the UConn campus in Storrs, CT